Footnotes
HARD MYSTERY patiently kept pace with the front runners from off the inside, under a firm hold throughout the opening half, continued to bide time, idling behind rivals late on the far turn, found an available path along the rail turning for home and eagerly altered course towards it, surged by take over, drew clear under a very confident hand ride. PERMANENT WAVE three wide around both turns, came home willingly for the place. PEACE PRESERVER settled into midpack after the start, crept up into contention four wide around the far turn, maintained that momentum, rallied mildly to secure the show. SMOKIN' ALICE off to a good running start, conceded the advantage to MELPOMENE, left the rail as soon as the previously mentioned rival tucked along the rail to apply pressure, doing so with the rider attempting to hold something in reserve, made the front approaching the quarter pole and got let out with others now making their presence, proved powerless to match strides with the winner, then weakened steadily in the last eighth. MELPOMENE made a three wide run to grab the top, was no sooner sent over to the inside successfully when SMOKIN' ALICE ranged up to put on some pressure, argued for command until the quarter pole and faltered. THE WINGED VENUS well off the rail during the running, trailed.
