Footnotes
WELL HEELED got off to a good beginning, worked her way to the the front and tucked along the rail in time for the run around the bend, spurted away from the closest pursuers coming to the quarter pole to draw off to her biggest advantage, was still comfortably in front with an eighth to go, saw the margin sliced in half by the runner up, but reached the wire in plenty of time to safely hold on. GARMENTOS GIRL tracked the top one while taking the inside route, fell back in relation to that opponent coming to the head of the stretch, angled outward before taking off in earnest after that rival, began to close the gap a few strides before reaching the furlong marker, gained ground more readily thereafter en route for the place. RETTALFA forced to steady at the start, raced from off the inside, was place three wide at the top of the lane, got outfinished. SYLVIA T saved ground throughout and was never a menace. SECRET UNION bumped soundly with SWITCHBOARD just out of the starting gate, raced along the outside, was in the three path by the five-sixteenths pole, lacked the necessary stretch response. ENDLESS CHATTER chased the leader from the two path, spun into the stretch having already felt the whip, tired. SWITCHBOARD stumbled badly at the start, falling outward while doing, then made hard contact with SECRET UNION, was put to some hand urging to secure position in midstretch, left the midway point on the turn, three wide and being roused, folded.
