LUBASH contently stalked the pacesetter from the two path, well rated, crept up to latch on to that foe as three-quarters was being completed, had the pilot still chilly in the saddle as the pair headed home, responded positively when given his cue and grabbed away the advantage, had the runner up quickly draw alongside, battled intensely, with each combatant leaning on each other at times, gamely prevailed. KHARAFa sat parked out three wide on both turns, picked up interest when asked to approaching the quarter pole, moved up to boldly challenge the winner, raced side by side with that foe in close quarters, vied with vigor to the end, but fell short. NOTACATBUTALLAMA shied inward coming to the end of the chute while attempting to secure position, bumped hard with JENRAH, took up residence in the two path, raced from between rivals for most of the way around the far turn, angled three wide into upper stretch, proved no match. PINBALL quickly established control, was rated along while cutting the pace, had the eventual winner increase his presence as the third split was being set, got asked for run soon afterwards, yielded past the quarter pole, remained prominently placed for almost another furlong before backing away. JONRAH made solid contact with NOTACATBUTALLAMA at the pair neared the entrance on to the main course, took the inside route, was asked for some run to keep pace down the backstretch, swung four to the three-sixteenths pole, tired. BEAUTYINTHEPULPIT saved ground to the quarter pole and was never involved. Objections lodged by the rider of JENRAH against both the riders of NOTACATBUTALLAMA and PINBALL alleging interference leaving the chute were dismissed and the order of finish was allowed to stand.
